GOOD PRACTICE LEGAL & CLINICAL INTERVENTIONS WITH HIGH CONFLICT FAMILIES

CALL FOR PRESENTATIONS

Hamilton High Conflict Forum is pleased to call for presentations for the Annual Conference with a theme of Good Practice Legal & Clinical Interventions with High Conflict Families. As a forum, our goal is to raise community awareness to issues related to high conflict separation and divorce and how best to assist families while staying focused on the needs of children. We believe in a collaborative approach to working with families experiencing high conflict, especially as high conflict often involves multiple service providers including school social workers, the Office of Children's Lawyer, children's aid societies, physicians, family lawyers, police, domestic violence agencies, and therapists. This conference will allow us to learn, share information and network. We are inviting those interested to submit proposals.

Presentation topics may include, but are not limited to:

- High conflict and reconciliation therapy
- Assessing for emotional harm in high conflict cases
- The issue of children's consent in therapy
- Early intervention and high conflict families
- Assessing for high conflict

Presentations will be approximately 75 minutes in duration. To submit a proposal, please include the following information:

1. Presentation title;
2. An abstract of approximately 250 words describing your proposed presentation and how it fits within the Conference theme and vision of Hamilton High Conflict Forum;
3. Confirmation of the contact person, names or other presenters and brief biographies.

Submit your proposal by sending the requested information to:
